MURKIN CITIES.

The Lots Located by the U. S. Officers to be Jumped.

KANSAS CITY, April 24th.—The Journal's Oklahoma City special says: Oklahoma City, like the rest of the country, is a properly speaking, was claimed as a town, excepting that portion which was captured before time by those appointed to go down and execute the law. The Deputy United States Marshals laid out the town on Sunday night and Monday morning. They covered the supposed choice sites with tents. When the train from the south arrived about 1 o'clock, the later comers were struck by the scene.

They did not repeat the wild rush at Guthrie, but they mechanically walked and the excitement was all over. The government officials had kindly left, went on out two miles staking out town. The water at Oklahoma is plenty and the houses there are no doubt at Guthrie, and in fact there is a lack of dirt. As at Guthrie the days are hot and the nights are cold and food is hard to obtain. The new comers at Guthrie are peacefully inclined, but they may yet show indignation against the law.

There is now an organized crowd to the north of the city. Every man who antedates 12 o'clock noon on the 24th is a lawbreaker. The names of these people are being secured by the U. S. officers. In the forenoon the U. S. officers were at the jail, and at one time, while the jumpers were being taken to jail, the jumpers were backed by 200 armed men. If peace-keeping numbers are being overpowered by numbers, the U. S. officers are not to be ejected from the property they have taken. They are not to be ejected from the property they have taken. To-day's Weather Indications.

California—Fair, with light drizzle, slightly cooler to the interior, nearly stationary weather along the coast.

Oregon and Washington—Local rains, followed by fair weather, with light drizzle and cooler in the western portion. Nearly stationary temperature in the western portion.

The most magic growth of the city of Guthrie, which sprang inside of ten hours from a hamlet to a place of 15,000 inhabitants, and in which an election for town officers was held before dark on the day of the birth of the new city, illustrates in a striking manner the push and enterprise of the pioneer class, and the restless spirit of peaceful conquest that urges our people westward to victory over nature beyond the borders of settled civilization. It may be that the city of Guthrie will prove to be one of "shreds and patches," and that its collapse may early follow its birth.

But it is more likely that out of its canvases and shacks will grow into a strength and symmetry. It is only exceptional when the founders of a Western town abandon it. The foresight, and the more accident that gave the place being, has more generally served to make and preserve it, a town at least. The capacity and aptitude of our people for self-government is vividly illustrated in the example of Guthrie. The first thought after the establishment of authority. This was effected without difficulty and before the sunset on the day that converted the hamlet into a city and peopled it with a restless, energetic and fearless population, the machinery of the law was in full operation and the strong under restraint from trespass upon the rights of the weak. We do not believe that in any other country on the face of the globe such a scene as that of last Tuesday at Guthrie could be paralleled, since there is no other land in which the people are cultivated to such self-confidence, or such submission to the will of the majority.

THERE is a considerable degree of harsh feeling among newspaper men in San Francisco against the builders of the cruiser Charleston because they refuse to admit representatives of the press on the occasion of the trial of the warship. There ought to be no complaint. The vessel has not been accepted by the Government, the trial is therefore one that concerns most of all, the men who have advanced the money and done the work according to the contract for her construction, and it is very easy to understand that they wish to be left free to give the cruiser a trial privately, that any possible defects in her build or machinery may be remedied without the noise and bluster the newspaper men would be sure to make over the revelation of any misconstruction that may develop but be capable of correction. These builders have a great deal at stake upon the success of the ship, and should not be handicapped by the criticisms of reporters none of whom is a ship-builder or ship-owner, or has anything at stake in the trial, or whose presence on board the vessel could not contribute to the success of the trip, but whose accounts of it might occasion a great deal of public uneasiness that in no manner whatever would be beneficial to the country. We believe the builders are right in limiting the witnesses of the trial trip to experts in ship-building and handling and to engineers and machinists.

The Indianapolis Journal issued a call for descendants of revolutionary sires to make themselves known, but it did not receive from the people of its city a single response. But this does not of necessity prove that there are no descendants of revolutionary sires in the Hoosier city. It simply indicates, as the Inter-Ocean puts it, that there are none who can put sufficient record of their genealogy in these busy days to be able easily to establish their claims. It may mean also that those who have possession of record evidence to show that they sprang from such stock, do not deem it necessary to respond to the newspaper call for inquiry into their domestic concerns. The fact that a man's great grandfathers were spurs and fought in the days that ruled men's souls, is of no value to him in giving him position in this country, nor should it be. In very many cases, too, the contrast between the progenitor and the descendant may be very pleasant to the latter. Moreover, there is a growing disposition, and one to be encouraged and conserved, to resent the inquiry that the modern newspaper man too often holds to be his duty to make into the affairs of the home. The "personal" business of the sensational newspaper in the majority of cases is positively offensive and impertinent.

THERE is one instance now of record where knowledge of the art of self-defence proved the salvation of a man's life. In his Arctic excursion Lord Lansdale fell in with a particularly savage tribe of Indians. They first put him to the "warrior's test of courage," rushing upon him in a body with drawn knives, but not striking when they found he did not flinch, and that his pulse remained normal. That night the tribe set upon him out of anguish and attempted to stab him. The Englishman's training in boxing served him well. With a "left-hander" he laid the savage low, and on the assault being renewed, a "right-hander" sent the fellow sprawling, tumbled and helpless into a corner. The tribe was so astonished at the skill of the white man, that they made him obeisance, and from that time he had no further trouble with those particular Indians.

Some idea of the interest that is excited by the anticipation of the great celebration in New York next week may be gained from the fact that many advertisements appear in the papers of that city offering large sums of money for eligible sites from which to view the two great processions that are to move on Tuesday and Wednesday. There are also advertisements offering points of view from which enormous prices are asked. For instance, if any of our people can manage to reach New York by Tuesday next a group of them may be able to secure the location offered in this extravagant advertisement:

WINDOWS—A MAGNIFICENT ROOM WITH four large windows, which overlook the entire GRAND STATION, from Twenty-third to Twenty-fifth streets, and from which can be seen the SEULY PARTY ONLY for the great grandstand, price $2,000; no agents or speculators; references required.

We certainly do these things in America upon a grand scale. The $1,500 offer will surely find a taker. Some one who has that amount of money hanging heavily upon his hands will turn up and take the proffer.

THE romantic story of the adventures of a year in Arctic regions, by young Lord Lansdale, and which appeared in the RECORD-UNION yesterday, reads like a chapter from an Arabian tale, in its thrilling recital of hairbreadth escapes, privations, suffering and exploration. The more methodical account that the traveler will write out from his diary entries will unquestionably prove of much value to the English and American Geographical Societies. According to Lord Lansdale there must have been some very material alterations in our maps of the topography of the Alaska coast, and the character and courses of the streams, as laid down on accepted charts.

THE New York Tribune enters its protest to proposals of marriage being made by type-writer letters, and wants the line drawn at the telephone as the extreme limit of toleration. Both should be condemned by the ladies, for both are covardly resorts. There is nothing in the estimation of a sensible woman equal to the proposition in propria persona. There is no romance, no poetry, no emotion in the type-writing device, and a great deal less in the non-secretive "hello" machine.

PROHIBITION met its Waterloo in Massachusetts on Monday. The strangest thing about the contest was the action of the keepers of low saloons. These men uniformly voted with the Prohibitionists, because they hoped thereby to kill off the high license that threatens them. Believing that prohibition would prove inoperative, they preferred that the amendment should be adopted, which would, of course, prevent any license system being put into force.

THE Atlanta Constitution speaks of the citizens who throng to the White House on this time as a "pestiferous mob,"

How differently the Constitution looked upon the same kind of a "mob" in the early days of 1855.

SERENADED AT PALO ALTO.

Senator and Mrs. Stanford Entertain the University Band.

MAYFIELD, April 24th.—Last evening

Senator and Mrs. Stanford were the happy recipients at their Palo Alto home of a serenade tendered them by the University Band of Mayfield, consisting of twenty-five members, under the direction of Professor George Dewey, of San Francisco. The band has been organized only a few days, and is beginning to show received much welcome assistance and encouragement from both Mr. and Mrs. Stanford. After their recent visit to the city of choice selections, both of them express their great surprise and gratification at the rapid progress which the band has made in so short a time, and cordially invited them all inside to partake of refreshments.

Mr. Stanford spoke many words of praise and encouragement to the young men composing the band, and briefly outlined the great educational advantage, particularly musical, which he proposed to supply at the great University which he is founding for the benefit of the present and all future generations. At the conclusion of his remarks, he and Mrs. Stanford escorted their visitors all through their beautiful residence, and then, after the many rare and elegant furnishings which they have lately received from Europe. After which the band played a few choice selections, and receiving many thanks from Mr. and Mrs.

Stanford for the evening's entertainment, their departure was highly pleased with their most cordial reception.

THE BOYS ARE SAFE.

A Messenger Boy's Interview with Mr.

Huntington.

The San Francisco Examiner yesterday published the following:

There are a dozen messenger boys employed in the buildings at Fourth and Townsend. All are very young. They are not hard-worked, but come and go with mechanical precision from the Director's rooms to all the offices up and down the fourteen-story building.

For a week past reports have been circulating among the employees that Mr.

Huntington and his associates were devoting much of their time to reducing the pay-roll. This talk frightened the boys, and they met on Saturday last and fixed up a petition, which reads as follows:

"Miser Huntington and Miser Stanford, we messengers boys that you employ to show us the way out of our offices and to the building don't want you to cut down our wages.

Most of us get $12 a month. Please don't make us any less. You've got to give us money. Please don't cut down our money.

Then their great difficulty arose in selecting one from their number to present the petition.

"Jack, you take it," said the little lad who ushers visitors before Colonel Crocker.

"You know you sat next Mr. Stanford at lunch one day, and he asked you to pass the macaroni and cheese. He knows you now."

But "Jack," who is Passenger Agent

Goodman's faithful messenger, declined the honor. "Mr. Stanford," said he, "hasn't noticed me since the 'beach' yet."

The boys decided the point by drawing lots, and the chance chose "Jack."

He started then to walk back to the door without turning round my back to him, see?

"Wait," says he. "I stood by his table all a-asking. He's going to give me fraud. But didn't, boys." "What did he say?" "He said, 'You know, then he told me to tell you boys that he wasn't going to take any of our money from us, and he pat me on the head, and then he told me I could go."

He stuck our paper in his pocket. I believe he was a little bit drunk. He wasn't, but he was a little bit drunk. He
